

G. O. P. EXPECTS TO ELECT HUGHES AND DOMINATE SENATE

Control of House Sure by 27 Majority, Chairman Woods Predicts.

CONCENTRATING EFFORTS

Foresees Safe Majority for Republican Presidential Candidate on Eve of Election.

The election of Hughes. Election of a Republican House by a majority of at least twenty-seven. More than an even chance for the Republicans to control the Senate.

These are predictions of Chairman Frank Woods, of the Republican Congressional campaign committee, in a significant statement which he has issued forecasting the result of the election next Tuesday.

Mr. Woods' construction is well known, and he has put out the statement only after a careful investigation of conditions.

With respect to Mr. Hughes, Mr. Woods has been convinced for weeks that his election was a practical certainty. With reference to the House, he has insisted all along that if the Republicans organized and worked hard, they would win it.

Good Chance of Winning Senate.

The most striking feature of Mr. Woods' prediction is his assertion that the Republicans have "better than a fifty-fifty prospect" of getting the Senate.

It was learned today that back of this stands the fact the Republicans have been doing a tremendous amount of hard and systematic organization work to get Senate control. Further, Democratic leaders in the last few days have privately admitted they were dubious about the Senate and feared it might go Republican.

Hughes' Election Safe.

Mr. Woods' statement follows: "Charles E. Hughes will be elected by a satisfactory majority. The next House of Representatives will have a Republican majority of at least twenty-seven. The Republicans have better than an even chance of controlling the Senate."

"These figures are not a mere guess," said Chairman Woods. "They constitute a summary of the final reports made to this committee to date, by hundreds of careful, experienced workers, who sent their information, not only to the committee, but in order to give the exact situation in the respective communities on the eve of election."

"I am confident of the soundness of my information, and, therefore, say that there is a practical certainty of the election of Hughes and a Republican House, and better than a fifty-fifty prospect of Republican control of the Senate."

Buckling of Cattle Cars Sends 40 Steers to Woods

SCRANTON, Pa., Nov. 2.—Forty steers en route from Buffalo to New York escaped from a Lackawanna train at Nay Aug when the breaking of an air hose caused two cattle cars to buckle. Before the train crew and driver realized what was up the steers was scampering through the hills.

Nineteen had been rounded up at dusk last night, but there are twenty-one still at large. The break halted traffic for half an hour.

PRESIDENT WILSON ON PARTISAN BIAS

I want to register my solemn protest here against the use of our foreign relationships for political advantage. I cannot, I will not, regard any man as a patriot who does that—men who in the midst of the most critical relationships, the detail of which they do not know, make play with the loss of the lives of American citizens, even in order that they may create a domestic political advantage.

We are not afraid to fight and we are not disinclined to fight for the things that America stands for. We are waiting for the call we have always waited for. We have fought for humanity, but in order to do so we should ever fight for self-satisfaction or for aggression.

Variety of opinion among ourselves there may be, but for as every other nation is concerned we must be absolutely a unit.

Use for Political Parties.

Use political parties but do not make partisan use of them. So far as the Democratic party is concerned, as an organization I have not the least interest in any question the point of which is, what is for the advantage of the Democratic party, but I have the profoundest interest in this question: How can the Democratic party best be used to serve the interests of the people?

Just so soon as our political parties are used for partisan objects they become a menace to the public interest, and an obstacle to the wise selection of policy.

Any man who tries to apply the economic principles of ten years ago, of five years ago, of two years ago, to the present economic conditions and relations of the United States will be running the risk of a disastrous mistake.

The thing that strikes me most about the new economic situation is that it is not yet fully disclosed in its details, and that no man can predict with confidence what those details are going to be.

Some of us who had all our lives long seen the question of the tariff handled as a party question, made up our minds that it was high time to stop handling it as a party question. It is a question of facts, and not a question of theoretical opinions which may be held.

Point of View.

If you get into your consciousness the idea that you belong to the capitalist class, the employing class, you are at the same time getting into your mind that the employed class, the laboring class, is a different sort of folk.

The whole thing rests on a radical misunderstanding. These men may not have as much money as you, they may not be able to assemble it in the same influential form, but they are the same sort of flesh and blood as you are.

Then, can you happiness the same way that you do; they can get misery the same way that you do; they can be hungry as you can, they can be full as you can, and you have got to see to it that you regard every mother's son of them as of the same flesh and blood as you are, and that justice is going to be done.

It is remarkable how grateful the skilled workers of this country are when you do them justice. I am ashamed when I do them mere justice to have them come and thank me. Political parties are very much interested in the workingmen when election comes around, because they know they are in the majority. I want to help them after the election.

For Vocational Education.

I want to have the Federal Treasury help them to get vocational education. You can't fool the workingmen. Too many public men make them promises so indefinite that you can't tell when the promises are kept.

One of the things I want to take part in is the rectification of the processes of our courts. The processes are too complex. The trouble is not with the judges or the lawyers. Most of them, not all of them, want to do justice. But it is necessary to go through a maze of procedure. Every nation of our rank has simplified the processes of its courts.

While we are talking about principles, we ought to be talking about procedure. I am not interested in whether men are going to get justice, but how they are going to get it. We ought to see to it that the Federal and State Legislatures get down to business.

It's easy to talk like a statesman. It's easy to talk like a statesman. What we want is the reality. I believe in government by opinion, but I do not believe in government by the mere expression of opinion.

We have heard a good deal recently about the eight-hour day. One of the things that interests me about it is not merely that it means justice, but that it means health and happiness. I am in favor of it just as far as it can be made to work. It increases the physical vitality of workers.

All May Profit.

After it does everybody will have profited. The men who oppose it do not know what makes the heart work. They only know what makes the spleen work. We do not want the physical vigor of the nation to go down in any way.

If this nation is to be a great nation it must think straight. I am impatient that the talk which has got to last until next Tuesday should be over.

Some of the men now most vocal in criticizing the things done in the last three or four years were formerly the men who helped to do those things. They have not been rational since the last of June.

There is an impression in some quarters that some parts of America want to use the nation for purposes outside the group of nations. But people are not to judge by the noise. After all, the talk in various parts of this nation are a small minority.

This nation is going to mean only that as we mean to write ourselves to justice and right among our own people and among all peoples.

We are not going to be drawn into quarrels which mean nothing to us. We are not interested in seeing one nation or group of nations prevail against another.

REPUBLICANS PLAN SMOKER SUNDAY

State Committee and Club League Will Give Entertainment at Headquarters.

The Republican State Committee of the District and the League of Republican State Clubs will give a smoker and entertainment at headquarters Saturday evening at 8 o'clock.

At the smoker will be shown a film 2,000 feet long entitled "A Reunited Party." It gives an interesting presentation of the political situation. It will be shown every night at headquarters from now on to election.

Robert M. McQuay, of the Hughes Republican Club of Georgetown University, has gone to Newark to speak for Hughes this afternoon.

This evening, he will be principal speaker at a meeting at Orange, N. J. He will make a number of other speeches in New Jersey and New York in the closing days of the campaign.

BITTER ATTACK MADE ON WILSON BY WORKS

California Senator Appeals for Elect' on of Hughes as Fearless American.

One of the most scathing attacks yet made on the Administration has been issued by Senator Works of California.

He appeals for the election of Hughes, to whom he pays tribute, as a candid, outspoken, fearless, and independent American. He declares the course of the Administration has been one of "unparalleled concealment, deception, and broken pledges, amounting in some instances to positive dishonesty."

"That the foreign policy has been 'vacillating,' 'blundering,' and has come nearer than anything else to involving the country in war is the declaration of Senator Works, who is a Progressive Republican. He declares the claim 'he kept us out of war' is a mere pretense to catch votes."

Will Attract Notice.

It is likely the statement will attract notice by reason of his prominence in the Senate. He says:

"Wilson has assumed the role of a dictator and coerced the Democratic majority of Congress against the country. He has declared the course of the Administration has been one of 'unparalleled concealment, deception, and broken pledges, amounting in some instances to positive dishonesty.'"

Senator Works reviews the long list of instances in which Democratic platform pledges were violated, and shows that the Wilson Administration has engaged in extravagance, and has destroyed efficiency through overwork and the threat of a strike. President Wilson's course was intended to secure the votes of the laboring classes. It will be the effect of our countrymen who do not appreciate the fact that no class of people needs the protection of a strong, independent, and fearless government more than the laboring class.

Denounces Law.

Senator Works then turns his attention to the wage-increase legislation, which he denounces as the "crowning enormity of this course of conduct on President Wilson's part. Instead of arguing in the name of the country, the facts, he declared what must be done, and would hear of nothing else. Congress acted under executive coercion, and the threat of a strike. President Wilson's course was intended to secure the votes of the laboring classes. It will be the effect of our countrymen who do not appreciate the fact that no class of people needs the protection of a strong, independent, and fearless government more than the laboring class."

In a detailed review of the mismanagement of relations with Mexico, Senator Works says: "To recount what has been done in the name of the country and the things that should have been done, but have not, is to publish to the world the darkest page of our national history." "In the years since Wilson took office American citizens have been murdered, their wives and daughters outraged, their homes desecrated, their property destroyed, and the flag of their country trodden under foot, and, in most instances, not a finger raised or the influence of our Government exerted for their protection. Their pleas for help were scoffed at, and their motives in coming residents and property owners in Mexico denounced as unworthy."

Various Forms Of Headache

"It is necessary in order to treat headaches properly to understand the cause which produces the affection," says Dr. J. W. Bay, of Brooklyn, N. Y. "Physicians cannot even begin the treatment of a disease without knowing what causes it to arise. It is, therefore, most important that the cause be understood in order to counteract the cause which produces the headache, but we must also give a remedy to relieve the pain until the cause of the trouble has been removed. To answer this purpose, anti-kamie tablets will be found a most convenient and satisfactory remedy. One tablet every one to three hours in severe cases of headache, neuralgia and particularly the headaches of women."

When we have a patient subject to regular attacks of headache, we should caution him to keep his bowels regular, for which nothing is surer than 'A-K' Tablets. Such patients should also be instructed to carry a few anti-kamie tablets, so as to have them ready for instant use. These tablets are prompt in action and can be depended on to produce relief in a very few minutes. Ask for A-K Tablets.

WADE H. COOPER, Pres.

Hughes, If Winner, to Be the First Baptist In the White House

As a rule, the President of the United States have all been Christian believers. Only two of the twenty-seven Presidents—Thomas Jefferson and Andrew Johnson—were not connected with any church, but their most intimate biographers record them as believers in the Christian faith. Thomas Jefferson is described as a liberal and non-sectarian. Andrew Johnson attended most frequently the Methodist Church, of which his wife was a member.

Most of our Presidents have belonged to the Episcopal Church, especially to the earlier Presidents. Of the first ten Presidents five were members of that church. Washington was a devout communicant, and many years a vestryman in his parish. It was only natural that the religious predilections of the early Presidents should tend toward the Episcopal Church, the Church of England, for the first census, that of 1790, showed that 90 per cent of the population of the United States was of English birth and straight English extraction.

Of no act of constructive statesmanship of which he was the author was Jefferson more thoroughly convinced than that which he passed in the Virginia legislature, establishing religious freedom. His family and his most intimate friendships were Episcopalian in faith and sympathy, but he had the same spirit as impelled the Puritan Fathers, who came from Old England to New England to enjoy freedom of worship, the same conviction as animated Roger Williams, who spoke in the face of persecution for the rights of conscience.

Churches of Presidents.

The churches and membership affiliation of the twenty-five Presidents, excluding Jefferson and Johnson were: Episcopalian—Washington, Madison, Monroe, William H. Harrison, Tyler, Taylor, Pierce, Arthur, Grant, Hayes, McKinley, Adams, Fillmore, Taft.

Presbyterian—Jackson, Polk, Buchanan, Lincoln, Cleveland, Benjamin Harrison, Wilson.

Reformed Dutch—Van Buren, Roosevelt.

Methodist—Grant, Hayes, McKinley.

"All of our Presidents of late years have been religious men and devoted church members," says the Rev. Dr. Samuel H. Green, who has been a prominent Washington churchman. "It is because it is inconceivable that either of the great parties would put forward as a candidate a man who would not be acceptable because of non-religious connection."

Of the Christian faith in the United States by the census of 1910 numbered 75,000,000 of whom 11,000,000 were Roman Catholic, the membership of the Episcopal Church, of which eight Presidents were connected, was at the last census 1,038,000. Of the Presbyterian Church, of which seven Presidents were members, it was 2,083,000. Of the Methodist Church, with three Presidents, it was 3,285,000. Of the Unitarian Church, of which one President, Dr. Green, was a member, it was 435,000. Of the Disciples, with one President, 1,363,162.

Wilson Presbyterian.

President Wilson is well known as a staunch Presbyterian, having been since early youth a member of that church of which his father was a distinguished minister.

For the first time in political history the candidate of a great party belongs to a church that has not been represented either in the White House or in a party candidate. It is the Republican party's candidate in Charles Evans Hughes. The Republican candidate is a Baptist. He has been a Baptist not only from early boyhood, following the teaching of his father, who was a Baptist minister, but he has been, perhaps more ardently and actively associated with the workers of that faith than any former President with any church organization.

While a practicing lawyer in New York, before he became governor, Mr. Hughes was a member of the Fifth Avenue Baptist Church, of which his classmate at Brown University, the Rev. Dr. F. F. Johnson, was for a long time the pastor. Here Mr. Hughes taught a young men's Bible class, which is now in charge of John D. Rockefeller.
